Message From The Mayor

Sarah Hayden

Golden Plains Shire Mayor

As Mayor of Golden Plains Shire, I am delighted to introduce our Municipal Early Years and Children's Plan, a strategic blueprint that reflects our commitment to supporting the health, wellbeing, and development of children aged 0-12 years in our community.

At Golden Plains Shire, we believe that every child deserves the best possible start in life. From infancy through to early childhood and the primary school years, we recognise the crucial role that families, caregivers, educators, and the broader community play in shaping the future of our youngest residents. This plan lays out our vision for a child-friendly municipality—one where every child is nurtured, valued, and given the opportunities they need to thrive.

Through extensive consultation with families, early childhood professionals, schools, and community groups, this plan identifies key priorities that will guide our efforts in the years ahead. These include accessible early learning and care services, enhanced health and wellbeing programmes, family support initiatives, and opportunities for children to play, learn, and grow in safe and inclusive environments.

Council remains dedicated to working collaboratively with our partners, ensuring that we create an environment where all children and their families feel supported and empowered. By investing in the early years, we are laying the foundation for strong, resilient, and connected communities in Golden Plains Shire, both now and into the future.

I encourage all community members to engage with this plan and be part of our shared commitment to making Golden Plains Shire an even better place for children to flourish. Together, we can ensure that our youngest residents have every opportunity to learn, play, and achieve their full potential.

Golden Plains Shire Council is committed to creating a culture of child safety and recognises that protecting children and young people and preventing and responding to allegations of child abuse, is an organisation-wide responsibility, including empowerment of children and young people, diversity and cultural safety, and involvement of families and communities in our efforts to keep children and young people safeguarded.

About The Strategy

Golden Plains Shire Council’s Municipal Early Years and Children’s Plan (MEYCP) 2025-2029 is a local area plan designed to provide a strategic direction for the development and coordination of early years and children’s programs, activities, and other local community processes that impact on children aged 0-12 years.

The MEYCP is not a statutory obligation of local government, however, it is a critical strategy which defines Council’s role in early years and articulates the work undertaken on behalf of children and families in their municipal area. This MEYCP sets the strategy for the Council’s work in early years between 2025-2029.

Golden Plains Shire Council’s Vision and Plan align with the MEYCP by prioritising health, inclusion, education, and community engagement to support children and families

Approach

A Developmental Approach to Early Years & Childhood

Developmental Approach

Utilising a developmental stages approach to segment age groups, the evolving needs of children, young people, and their families at different stages of life – from postnatal & infancy, through the early childhood, and the middle years is recognised. This approach allows us to tailor our programs and services to support each stage of development effectively.

Socio-Ecology Approach

Children's development is influenced by various socio-ecological factors, including their families and the broader community. These factors play a significant role throughout their lives and has be taken into account when developing strategies for positive change.

Our Community

Golden Plains Shire is located between Ballarat and Geelong and features a vibrant landscape, historic townships and award-winning businesses. The environment's beauty lies in its varied spectacles including river valleys, rolling hills, rugged bushland, miles of golden canola and rocky plains. Golden Plains Shire Council emerged out of the integration of former Bannockburn and Leigh and parts of Grenville and Buninyong Shires in 1994, and today is the fifth fastest growing municipality in regional Victoria.

These collaborative efforts ensure that the community has access to high quality services and support. By working together with various stakeholders, Council aims to create a cohesive and supportive environment for all residents.

Municipal Early Years and Children's Plan

The MEYCP is structured around four key themes designed in line with the Victorian Early Years Compact to foster holistic well-being and development of children and families in the region. These areas provide a comprehensive framework that encompasses key areas such as health and wellbeing, education and learning, diversity and inclusion, and social & community. By segmenting into these four areas, the MEYCP aims to address the diverse needs of children and their families, fostering a supportive environment where they can thrive and contribute meaningfully to the community.

Key Themes

The Municipal Early Years & Children's Plan is built around four key themes that align with the Victorian Early Years Compact and reflect the priorities of families and communities across Golden Plains Shire. These themes provide a structured approach to ensuring the holistic well-being, development, and inclusion of children from birth through to early adolescence.

By addressing these four focus areas, the MEYCP aims to create a supportive, connected, and thriving environment where all children and families—regardless of their background or location—can access essential services, feel valued, and actively participate in their community.

Health & Wellbeing

OVERVIEW

High childhood immunisation rates, but low adolescent vaccination uptake

Asthma rates exceed the state average; other conditions are lower

Strong mental well-being with high community trust and resilience

Healthcare access is limited, with most services in Bannockburn & Smythesdale

Residents travel to Geelong, Ballarat, or Melbourne for specialist care

Key priorities: Expanding local health services, improving transport, and boosting health awareness.

Access to health and wellbeing services in Golden Plains Shire is limited and concentrated in Bannockburn and Smythesdale, where General Practitioners and some Allied Health services are available. Outside these towns, families often need to travel to Geelong, Ballarat, or Melbourne to access specialist care such as paediatrics or mental health support—creating challenges around transport, availability, and long wait times.

Despite these gaps, the Shire shows strong community resilience, trust, and high childhood immunisation rates. Asthma rates are above the state average, but other long-term conditions such as diabetes and heart disease are less common than elsewhere in Victoria.

While community centres across the Shire offer spaces for outreach, service availability remains inconsistent. Mental health support—particularly for children—continues to be a critical need. With ongoing population growth, especially among young families, expanding timely and local access to comprehensive health services is essential.

Education & Learning

OVERVIEW

Early Childhood Education and Care services in Golden Plains Shire are distributed throughout the municipality. The Shire has eight sessional kindergartens, four of which are located adjacent to primary schools, however, childcare services are concentrated in Bannockburn, making access difficult for families in other areas.

All Childcare and Kindergarten services offer 15 hours of funded 3- and 4-year-old Kindergarten programs an alignment with State Government's Best Start Best Life (BSBL) reform. This reform will also see the transition from 15 hours per week of 4-year-old Kindergarten to 30 hours per week of Pre-Prep from 2028. This aspect of the BSBL reform will place further demand on both infrastructure and the early years workforce.

Whilst continued planning and investment are necessary to ensure all families can access quality, local education, with the current 15 primary schools, 15 OSHC services, and 6 playgroups, Golden Plains offers a strong foundation for early learning.
